Helena dear,
you were good to write me on Monday since you couldn't do it Sunday. but I don't want you to feel that you have to write, for I know you are busy and I thought of course I love to hear from you and know how everything is, still I don't like to feel that I am giving you extra work.
So if ever you haven't time, I'll understand.

This afternoon I went over to Lois' to see Dick and took over a towel I have been embroidering for her. So belonged to her. I just worked it for her - scalloped along both edges with a D on one end. Her father died last night, but he was so queer and such a burden to himself and others that I guess it was a good thing. Dick surely has been a help to them; Lois' sister-in-law told me how much he had done and how fortunate she thought they were to have him in the family. I didn't care for her at first, but now I like her ever and ever so much.

Thank you for telling me about commencement and for sending the clipping about Toole.
Lovingly your sister,
Jane.
